However, even during free time I like to do some art, for instance sketching. There are a lot of art programs, and the order of the list is based on how I like to use it. "GIMP" is, for instance, my program of choice to create art for my games. Besides that, I really enjoy using it, even if it sometimes can get a bit overwhelming. "GIMP" has many functions and options, but most of them are hidden in the background. If you find a setting for the layer, fill or something else, you might not find your way back to it. In addition to that, in the "GIMP" it can take a bit to learn the ropes when you start. In the next few years, when I do a lot of pixel art, I'll definitely switch to Photoshop, mainly because I like the simple way of working with the artboard. I just load my art and go. So, when it comes to art creation, it is great to have a program you know and can immediately use. The same goes with games. Especially when you are just starting out. But, what if you are already pretty

What's new in Gun Wings - Original Soundtrack:

Gamer Chapter XLVI Well well! Here we have another post. This time, it's been a while. This chapter has actually been the longest we've had written in a year. On to my topic: Light, darkness and moving into the light of truth. Light. To me... The Light has been on for years, literally. It's always been there, within me, my whole life. What I call the Light is actually the light of truth. As I was seeking after truth in my initial journey of developing blogs, I noticed that there was a realm of darkness, sometimes black and tasteless. I grew distant from many other bloggers, because we were all on different walks, and we all were truly the lights in our own little spheres. I was doing what I do best: sharing stories and trying to help others better themselves. I was growing spiritually, but I was also growing physically, emotionally and mentally. My body was changing significantly. At the age of 14, my light had finally turned on. Anyways, the truth on all my blogs combined helped me achieve things that I could not have imagined. (I remember well, during the period that I solely wrote about mistakes I've made and then helping others through those mistakes.) On the other hand... Something happened. Something very... dark. Something black, and blacker than anything I had ever seen. The period of blackness started at a very young age. Very, very young. I remember being very upset because I couldn't stop my crying. I felt isolated, unloved, and truly alone. The night was black. Like a layer of dark, old, moist paper. Thick, and smooth. Then it was revealed at an age of ten. As the darkness was getting thicker and coming in from every side, a door finally opened. The door was light. The room was light. My eyes were open, my consciousness was broadening, and I was ecstatic. It was taken away from me, as quickly as it came. After realizing it would take too much effort, and would need to be shut down, I just went back into the darkness. I didn't mention it much to my parents, because it was a secret that I cannot divulge. Even at a young age, I was able to handle the darkness. As

In the near future, the world is populated with several species of intelligent lifeforms. The planet is covered with a diverse ecosystem, and Earth is ruled by a global government known as the United Federation of Earth. The planet is divided into districts that are led by warlords, who use the rule of fear and the threat of war to control the people. A select group of people called Mazesmiths are responsible for maintaining order in the districts. One of those Mazesmiths, Neku, joins the World Hunter Alliance along with his sister Nisa, and the pair must travel across the district to stop a series of murders. It's up to you to find out who is behind the murders and stop them from killing anymore people. Key Features: - Explore an open world, with streets and buildings to explore. - Full Voice acting. - Explorable city. - Live, dynamic soundtrack. - Characters have backstories. - 8 weapons for the world hunter to use. - Including many features that we are adding in the sequel, World's End This is a seamless and unfinished game. This is our first game that we've created. It's a first draft. So, the graphics are not the best. We're thinking about having an artist create some of the environments, but that's not in the cards. World's End Hello everyone. So, thank you all for your time and effort. This has been a really long journey to get to this point. Lots of hurdles and experiences, but we are finally here. A new, stunning video game featuring our debut title World's End. I am super excited to be able to finally share our first title with all of you. World's End is a grittier title that doesn't shy away from the brutality of the world we set up. This is truly the first title that was created by a solo developer, where we at Lab Zero had a team that was able to provide a substantial amount of art and design. World's End is a title that is truly and entirely made by me. We had a stretch of approximately 2 years and 17 days, where we were researching, experimenting, crafting, and brainstorming on what we could do. We had our team of 3 work very hard to come up with cool ideas, and even though we tried out a few different mechanics, we finally settled
